FOR MAIL ROBBERY.

ORRIN BUCHANAN ACCUSED OF A SERIOUS CRIME.

Arrested by a Deputy United States Marshal on a Charge of Tampering With the United States Mail While Acting as Delivery Clerk.

Something of a sensation was caused by the arrest this morning of Orrin Buchanan, son of A. G. Buchanan, the recent postmaster of Abilene, under the democratic administration, on a charge of tampering with the mails. Deputy United States Marshal Richard Brown received the warrant this morning and sought the young man at his father's farm, north of the city. Not finding him he came back to the city where Buchanan was found and having been arrested was taken on the noon train to Junction City where he will have a hearing as to being bound over to the U. S. district court.

The young man, who is accused of the serious charge, is aged about 22 years and was employed in the post-office during 1888 and 1889 while his father was postmaster. He was an outside delivery clerk and had considerable trouble on his route with patrons. It was claimed that certain articles, such as jewelry, money, etc., were lost in the mails and afterwards known to be in his possession. Whether the charges are true or not remains to be seen.

A detective has been in the city for many weeks, though the fact was known to but few, looking up the case and it is supposed the arrest was made on evidence secured by him. Mr. Buchanan's father and W. P. Seeds, attorney, accompanied him to Junction City, where the investigation will be held.

LATER—Buchanan was bound over for examination on March 10th.

Force Acquitted.

The Stauffer vs. Force case in the district court which was tried yesterday resulted in the jury bringing a verdict for the defendant, thus acquitting Force. It was not properly a note-forgery case but Force was accused of obtaining money on a note which had once been paid, but which the holder had neglected to efface.

Mrs. L. A. Wilson vs. Thos. Kirby was tried this morning. Settlement by agreement.

The case of Higgins Cracker Co. vs. E. E. Hollar is on trial. Tonight at 7:30 will be argued the motion for an order of injunction in the case of Dunlay vs. Hart.

Well Merited Praise.

The Dickinson County News has the following well-merited words of commendation for the county's successful superintendent: "J. S. Ford, county superintendent of schools, has given the best of satisfaction, and well he may, for he is a gentleman and a scholar, and during his term of office has made one of the best superintendents the county ever had. The News is pleased to see the friends of the schools of the county advocating his re-election this fall, and can say, if the office is to be filled another year by a republican, that we would rather see J. S. Ford get there than any one else who has been brought to our knowledge."

Mas-ic Grand Lodge.

The Grand Lodge meeting of the state A. F. and A. M. closed its session at Salina last evening, about 360 delegates being present. Throughout the entire session the visitors were treated royally by the Salina brethren. Every possible courtesy was extended and the Salinaites proved themselves model entertainers.

The following officers were elected at yesterday's session: J. C. Post-thwaite, of Mauckato, M. W. G. M.; A. M. Callahan, of Topeka, D. G. M.; D. B. Fuller, of Eureka, S. G. W.; W. D. Thompson, of Minneapolis, G. W. W.; Christ Beck, of Leavenworth, G. T. and J. H. Brown, of Kansas City, G. S. It was voted to hold the next annual meeting at Fort Scott. In the evening work in the third degree was exemplified.

Neurological.

Mrs. Jacob Bossler, living on South Fourth street, died this morning of pneumonia. She was aged about 64 years and has resided in Abilene for the last three or four years. She leaves a husband and four children to survive her. The children are W. L. Bossler, Chas. Bossler and Mrs. C. E. Ford, of this city, and a son in Kansas City. Mr. J. C. Krisber is a brother. The funeral will be held at the house Saturday at 10 a. m., Rev. F. M. Porch officiating.

Cancers, and cancerous tumors, are cured by the purifying effects of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Unjust Discrimination.

The Abilene Bridge Co. attended a bridge letting at Clay Center this week in which there were four iron bridges advertised to be let to the lowest bidder. The bids were opened at noon on the 17th, when all were rejected but two, the Missouri Valley Bridge Co.'s bid of $2,890 and the Abilene Bridge Co.'s of $2,450. All other bids were above these two. The commissioners adjourned from time to time until 2 p. m., the 18th, when they announced that they had awarded the contract to the Missouri Valley Co. on a new bid for $2,450, the amount of the bid of the Abilene Co. The Abilene Co. was not consulted as to making any other bid for the work.

When asked by a representative of the Abilene Co. if they were refused the work on account of irresponsibility or because they could not build the bridges, the answer was, they were acquainted with the other parties and were favoring them on that account.

Other bridge companies who had representatives there remained on the ground the next day after their bids were rejected and used their influence to prevent the Abilene Bridge Co. from getting the work by misrepresenting the company. None of the other bridge companies bid against one another, and all seem to be anxious to down this company. The discrimination was unjust, and even if the combination prevented the Abilene company getting the work, some credit should be given the latter for saving the county $440. A large sized African was no doubt in the bridge pile.

Stories of Abilene.

II.

THE KILLING OF PHIL COE

There are but few persons now residents of Abilene who are aware of the fact that out of twenty-three buildings that composed all there was of Abilene during the year 1869, twenty-one of them were drinking and gambling saloons, all doing a big business, being very freely patronized by Texas cowboys. Games of all kinds and descriptions were running day and night, regardless of law, other than that enforced by a revolver in the hands of some drunken desperado, no efforts being made to check mob law until the spring of 1870.

William Hickock, better known as "Wild Bill," then received his commission from the town council as marshal, receiving for his salary $250 per month, the money being collected by himself from the saloon keepers and gamblers, as a license for doing business. About the time of his appointment a Texas gambler named Phil Coe opened a saloon and gambling house. He and the city marshal had some misunderstanding over a game of cards, and as both were proud to be considered "bad" men they watched each other to get the drop. Coe walked into what was called the Alamo saloon, directly opposite from where Shook & Hoffman's store now is on South Cedar. Bill saw him and walked out into the middle of the street, and as Coe came toward the door to come out of the building Bill drew his revolver and shot Coe through the heart, and almost at the same instant he shot the second time killing the assistant marshal who was standing near Coe. Bill claimed the killing of his assistant to be accidental, but some thought it was intentional, as it was supposed the assistant knew too much.

Coe's body was loaded into a dray drawn by an old black horse to be transported to the depot to be shipped to Texas. After loading the coffin all hands, driver included, went into the building presumably for the purpose of "irrigating." The old horse getting tired walked off forming a funeral procession all alone. The driver on coming from the building espied the outfit traveling slowly northward. It was overtaken, brought back in a trot scarcely reaching the depot in time for the east-bound train.

Visiting hapman.

The flag-raising exercises at the Chapman high school were set for this afternoon and the Abilene high school pupils with W. S. Jenks and wife went down to enjoy them, part of the company taking the overland route and part the Union Pacific train. Hon. J. R. Burton was to have gone and delivered an oration, but a telegram at noon said that on account of the storm the exercises would be postponed. The Abilene crowd will have a good time nevertheless.

Married.

Edward Malott and Miss Hattie Rice were married last evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Rice, on west Third street, Rev. E. D. Walker, officiating. A number of guests were present. Mr. M. is an employee of Barnes & Northcraft's drug store, is popular in the city; his wife is well known in society circles. They remain in the city and are at home at the residence of Mr. Rice after March 1st.

Railroad Rates.

The following appears in the current issue of the Kansas Farmer: Editor Kansas Farmer:—"The transportation question" was ventilated at the last meeting of the Grove Hill alliance, and a paper was read showing that according to the reports of the Pennsylvania railway company for 1881, the average cost of moving trains over that road was six cents per mile. Therefore it would cost to haul a train of say three passenger coaches from New York to San Francisco, 3,000 miles, at six cents, $180; three coaches, sixty passengers each, 180 passengers; one hundred and eighty persons, at $1 each, $180. Instead of $1 the railroads charge $150.50 for a ticket across the continent.

The American Society of Civil Engineers, in convention June 25, 1885, gave the cost of hauling freight on American railroads at about six-tenths of a mill per ton per mile. At these rates, if the government owned the railroads, they could haul our freight at one-half cent per ton per mile and passengers at 5 cents per 100 miles (or fraction) and still clear a handsome profit.

Let us have light on this railroad monopoly that is robbing us of all the profits in farming. Does not the government hold a mortgage on this Union Pacific road? How much is it and why don't they foreclose and run it at cost for the people? A. R. Abilene, Kansas.

ARKANSAS VIEWS

What an Abileneite Saw in our Sister State That was Notable. Written for the REFLECTOR.

In my former correspondence I wrote of Hoxie, and before leaving there I met the only farmer who came to town with produce to market that day. He was a very pleasant spoken colored man and had on his wagon a bale of cotton of about 600 pounds. Entering into conversation with him, I learned that he had lived there about forty years, coming there with his old master when a boy, and that he had continued to stay with his master long after the war, but when old master died about fifteen years ago he had been made the owner of 120 acres of land for his services. Upon my questioning him about the price of land he said he would not sell but thought the best improved cleared land was worth about $20, and timber land about $10. Cotton was only a one-half crop last season, one-half bale to the acre, and was worth that day nine and one-half cents a pound.

Hot Springs is distant 187 miles southwest from Hoxie. The face of land along the road is a dead level, and covered nearly all the distance to Little Rock, 115 miles, with dense forests of timber, largely pine. The land lying so low and level, owing to continued heavy rains and no natural drainage, was covered with water from one to two feet deep. The only signs of industry to be noticed were the occasional steam sawmills with large piles of lumber and sometimes larger piles of saw dust near, the lumber having been shipped away as fast as cut. Ninety per cent. of the traffic of the Iron Mountain road between Hoxie and Texarkana is in lumber. Little Rock, the capital of the state, is said to be a city of 10,000 people, but as I was there only one hour I did not see much of it. Fifty miles southwest of Little Rock we came to Malvern Junction, the country along the distance being similar to that between Hoxie and Little Rock. At Malvern the road forms a junction with a road owned by the celebrated Mississippi river steamboat owner, Diamond Joe, which road has lately been changed from a narrow to a standard gauge and is twenty-two miles long. The road winds up the valley made by a small stream, has a heavy grade all the way to Hot Springs. So far through the state the only sign I have seen, and it is painted on every board pile and on the low flat roof of nearly all the buildings, reads "Use Malaria." For nearly 200 miles on this last trip there is scarcely any sign of a farm. In my next I will try to give your readers a brief insight into the truly wonderful Hot Springs, the Mecca towards which so many thousands make their pilgrimage every year. J. B. EDWARDS.
